

Frame 1

SLO County's Juvenile Hall recognizes that there could be a more effective way to minimize poor behaviors by focusing on positive reinforcement.

Frame 2

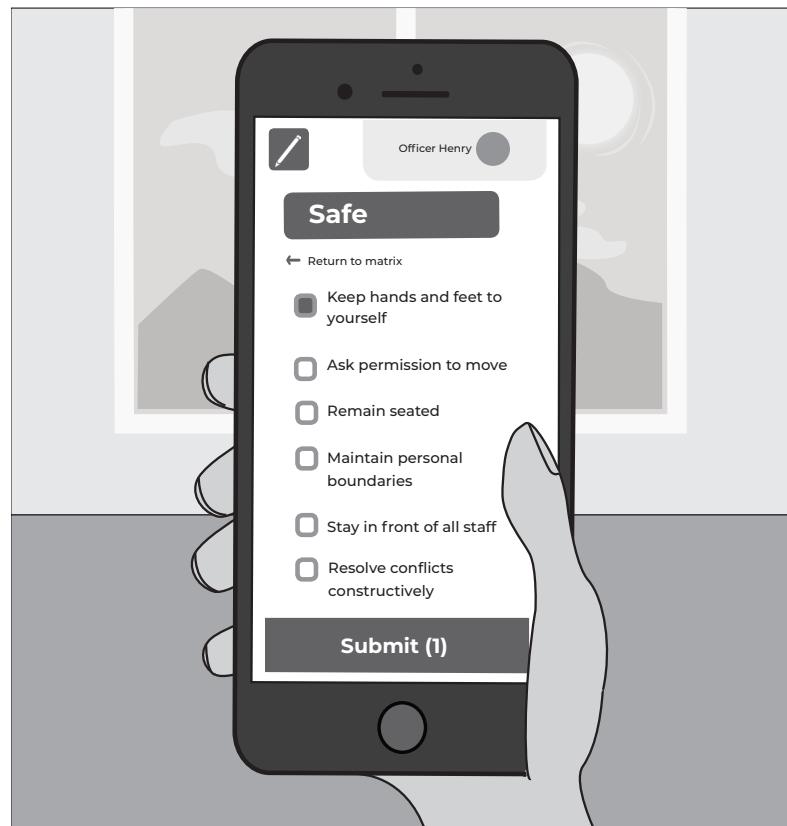

The use of a behavioral mobile application would allow youths to be recognized for exhibiting positive behavior within the matrix of "Safe", "Responsible", or "Considerate". These points can be cashed in for goods.

Frame 3

Any staff member can quickly scan a youth's bracelet to enter their points. Teachers and security members appreciate that they can contribute to the youths' behavior development in a much more positive way.

Frame 4

Officers can easily enter the positive behavior and location it took place through a simple interface on the phone.

Frame 5

Each youth's points can be shown in a daily accrual. They feel motivated to perform well, which encourages their fellow classmates and peers.

Frame 6

Liam feels great seeing his hard work paying off, and the staff members all notice that his attitude and work ethic have improved.
